WRITING

Writing Instructions

Read the two Writing tasks. Choose either Task 1 (Email/Letter) or Task 2 (Essay). Write on only ONE of these tasks.

Once you have chosen your task, darken the circle for “Email/Letter” or “Essay” on your writing answer document.

You should write about one page. You have 30 minutes.

Writing Prompt

Task 1: Email

The city council is thinking about passing a law allowing children 13 and younger to ride public transportation for free. This would raise prices for all other riders. The city council wants to know what local residents think about this.

- Write an email to the city council to explain your opinion. Give reasons to support your ideas.
- Start your email, “Dear City Council Members.”

Task 2: Essay

Advertising is often said to be dishonest and harmful. It causes people to buy products they do not need or cannot afford. The government should have the right to control advertising.

- Write an essay on whether you agree or disagree with the statement above.
- Include specific reasons and details to support your opinion.

Remember

Once you have chosen your task, darken the circle for “Email/Letter” or “Essay” on your writing answer document.

This passage is about light pollution.

In 1828, Paris lit up its streets for the first time. News quickly spread and the city became known as “The City of Light.” Bright city lights are now a symbol of modern civilization and progress. They brighten up streets, neighborhoods, homes, and even the sky. This has given growth to light pollution which can have some serious negative effects.

According to the International Dark-Sky Association (IDA), there is much to lose as dark starry nights disappear behind the yellow glow of city lights. This not only obstructs views of the sky, but it also wastes energy, harms humans, and threatens the study of astronomy. Billions of dollars, millions of barrels of oil, and tons of coal are wasted each year for lighting. Not only that, but excessive lighting is said to cause health problems in people such as anxiety, fatigue, headaches, sleeping disorders, and even cancer. Finally, astronomers have to search for remote areas unaffected by light in order to observe the heavens. For example, Chile’s Atacama Desert is popular for its crystal clear dark skies.

In order to reduce light pollution, the group urges people to turn to more dark-sky friendly fixtures: outdoor lighting that is aimed at the ground. Lighting should also be used only when needed and light bulbs changed to low wattage.

Since the beginning of time, humans observed and learned from the heavens above. It is only in recent history that people have lost the dark-sky view and an important part of their natural surroundings. For this reason, the IDA has gone a step further and is now preserving areas around the world as Dark-Sky Sanctuaries where truly dark skies still exist. In their view, it is part of the world’s heritage and vital to conserve for future generations.

- 75 What is the main purpose of this passage?
- A. to illustrate the negative aspects of street lights
 - B. to recommend the best dark-sky location
 - C. to inform people about proper lighting
 - D. to discuss the serious issue of light pollution
- 76 In the second sentence of the second paragraph, what does it refer to?
- A. the use of city lights
 - B. the darkness of the night
 - C. the sky view
 - D. a loss of dark nights
- 77 Based on the information in the second paragraph, what can result from too much lighting?
- A. stricter laws to protect Dark-Sky Sanctuaries
 - B. a decrease in popularity for astronomy
 - C. an increase in safety in neighborhoods
 - D. a feeling of tiredness in people
- 78 Why do astronomers study the stars in the desert?
- A. They like to get a different perspective.
 - B. They waste less energy there.
 - C. It is a popular location.
 - D. They can see clearly there.
- 79 According to the article, where should lighting be directed?
- A. upwards
 - B. inwards
 - C. downwards
 - D. outwards
- 80 What does the organization believe about dark skies?
- A. Cities should be fined for causing their disappearance.
 - B. They have important historical significance.
 - C. They have disappeared in most parts of the world.
 - D. Future generations should be told about them.

This passage is about natural dyeing.

It is a procedure as old as time, transforming common plants into natural fabric dyes. Although its popularity died out in the late 1800s, it seems to be making a comeback. Natural dyeing encourages artistic drive, getting colors yourself, and using plants to make a substance that is heavily used in today's culture.

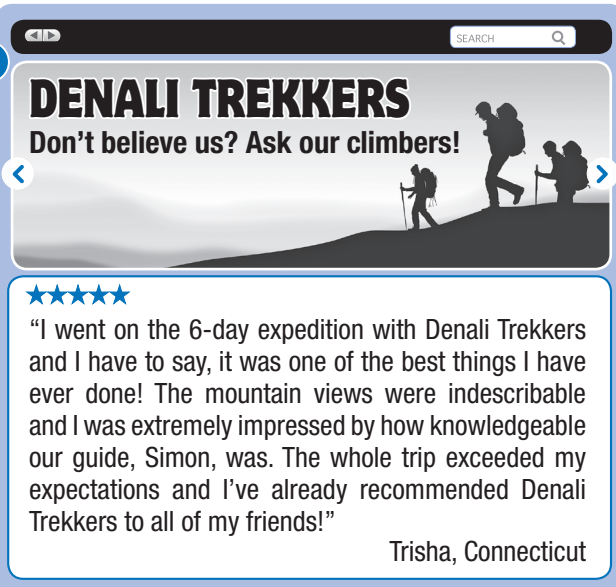

Botanists, plant scientists, believe in this economical and environmentally friendly method. Natural dyes exist all around us and come from simple things like tree leaves, berries, herbs, and common flowers. Botanists say that if you are looking at a plant, then you are observing a potential dye. It rivals chemically manufactured dyes, used on the clothes we buy, that produce harmful substances. Instead, natural dyeing teaches people to be aware of the environment and how to reuse products.

Nevertheless, there are some drawbacks to growing dye plants. Not only are they not as exotic as other plants, but colors can be unpredictable, too. Dyes depend on the land that plants are grown in, including the climate, water, and soil. Colors can also change from year to year, so you can never be accurate in your predictions. However, natural dyers cherish the inconsistent process. They call it serendipity: the luck of finding something by chance.

Natural dyes promote reusing items. They breathe new life into old clothes, transforming them into "new" high fashion pieces. Its popularity is reaching new levels as community dye gardens are making neighborhoods greener. They also teach the future generations how to carry on this beautiful, natural process.

- 81 What is the main purpose of the passage?
A. to criticize chemical production
B. to discuss an eco-friendly process
C. to compare different dyeing techniques
D. to explain how to grow plants for dyeing
- 82 According to scientists, where can you find natural dyes?
A. in clothing
B. in factories
C. in all edible plants
D. in everyday plants
- 83 How does natural dye differ from other dyes?
A. It releases harmful chemicals.
B. It is used on clothing.
C. It is made without harming anything.
D. It takes longer to produce.
- 84 How do natural dyers feel about unreliable colors?
A. They view it as a surprise.
B. They think it is a disadvantage.
C. They would rather know color details.
D. They enjoy guessing colors.
- 85 According to the text, how does the natural dyeing process assist fashion?
A. It makes clothes more valuable.
B. It strengthens old fabrics.
C. It reuses out-of-date items.
D. It establishes new trends.
- 86 In the fourth sentence of paragraph 4, what does the word they refer to?
A. the community
B. community dye gardens
C. high fashion pieces
D. natural dyes

DENALI TREKKERS
Don't believe us? Ask our climbers!

★★★★★

"I went on the 6-day expedition with Denali Trekkers and I have to say, it was one of the best things I have ever done! The mountain views were indescribable and I was extremely impressed by how knowledgeable our guide, Simon, was. The whole trip exceeded my expectations and I've already recommended Denali Trekkers to all of my friends!"

Ask the Experts!

Question:

I'm planning a guided hike up Denali next year, when do you think is the best time to go?

Randy Ponder, Minnesota

Answer:

Firstly, I'd say you've chosen one of the best and most stunning Alaskan peaks to conquer. A trek up the sides of a 20,320-foot glacial mountain is going to be tough any time of year, but some seasons certainly make it more difficult than others.

Speaking from experience, climbs are usually best from May through July – that's when we've had the most success reaching Denali's peak.

Another piece of advice is not to go really late in the season. This is because planes won't be able to land on the exposed glaciers which risks leaving you stranded. If this happens, it's a 10-day walk through thick forest to reach the nearest base. Don't say you weren't warned and best of luck!

Simon Green, Denali Trekkers

DENALI TREKKERS

"I have worked with a lot of good guide companies in the past, but Denali Trekkers was by far the best I have ever come across. The landscape was breathtaking and my friends had the time of their lives - thanks Denali Trekkers!"

Liz Shaw

Enjoy the magnificent snow-capped sights of Denali, otherwise known as Mt. McKinley – North America's tallest mountain – knowing that you are in safe hands.

As one of the first companies to offer climbing guides to Denali's peak over 30 years ago, Denali Trekkers has some of the most experienced guides available.

Minimum requirements:

- Completion of a Denali climbing seminar
- Completion of a snow or glacier climb
- Overnight backpacking experience

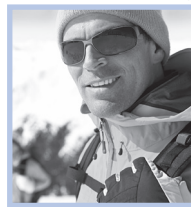

This is a physically challenging activity and we recommend that you begin training 6 months to a year before your Denali climb.

We are currently offering an early bird promotion: book a year in advance and get 20% off your Denali seminar!

Treksmart monthly: Simon Green

Senior Expedition Guide, Denali Trekkers

Simon Green has been a part of the Denali Trekkers Group for almost 8 years and he can't see himself anywhere other than on the mountain top of the USA's most dominant peak.

He grew up knowing that he would work outdoors and has spent his whole life in the Alaskan wilderness. Although many of his childhood friends moved to the bright lights of the city, Simon never had such ambitions. He found happiness in a slower pace of life, surrounded by the beauty of Denali and felt that nothing could compare to his hometown. His whirlwind stays and eager departures when visiting his city friends confirmed this, and since buying a home in Alaska 10 years ago, he has never looked back.

His way of life may seem isolated to some, but he says that he is faced with new challenges every day. He has braved the coldest winters in a tent and scaled some of the most dangerous mountains. He understands that some people think that playing it safe will mean a long and healthy life, but he sees this as not living at all.

LATIN AMERICAN CELEBRATION

You are invited to an evening at my house - 327 Amsterdam Ave - on September 1 as a farewell to you all before I leave for my year abroad. It's a Latin American theme. So, please wear something connected to Central or South America. I'll be making special South American dishes, so make sure to arrive around 6:30. I can't guarantee there'll be anything left to eat if you're late!

RSVP by August 20.

Subject: Costume Question

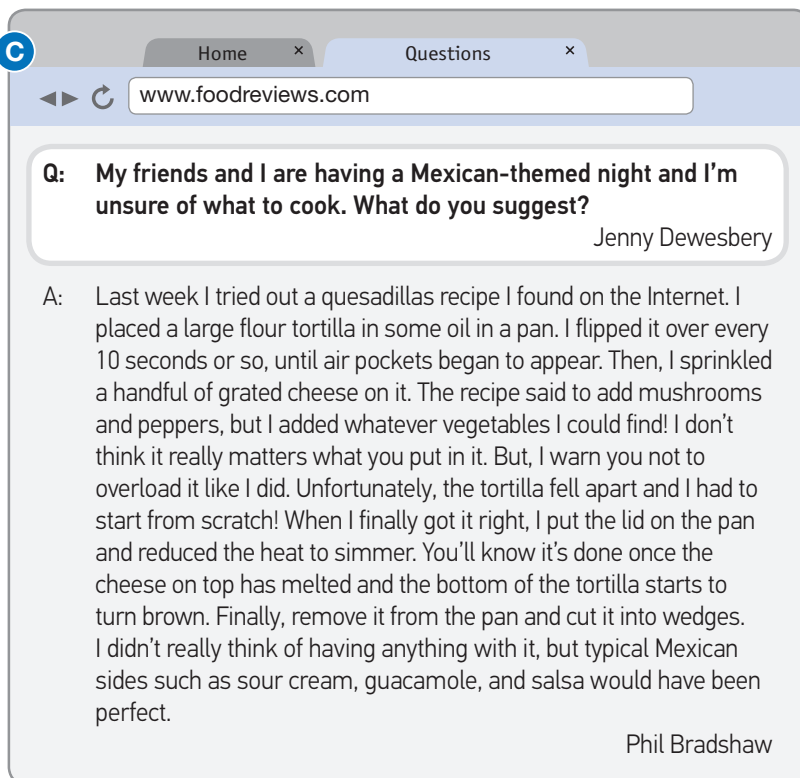

Dear Sir or Madam,

I'm holding a Latin American-themed party and I would really like a costume for it. What I have in mind is a carnival performer costume. Can you tell me if you have anything similar? I did not see one on your site. If you do, could you email me a link to it? My friend wants to dress up as some kind of matador, so maybe you could make us a deal?

Thank you in advance for your time and attention.

Best,

Q: My friends and I are having a Mexican-themed night and I'm unsure of what to cook. What do you suggest?
Jenny Dewesbery

A: Last week I tried out a quesadillas recipe I found on the Internet. I placed a large flour tortilla in some oil in a pan. I flipped it over every 10 seconds or so, until air pockets began to appear. Then, I sprinkled a handful of grated cheese on it. The recipe said to add mushrooms and peppers, but I added whatever vegetables I could find! I don't think it really matters what you put in it. But, I warn you not to overload it like I did. Unfortunately, the tortilla fell apart and I had to start from scratch! When I finally got it right, I put the lid on the pan and reduced the heat to simmer. You'll know it's done once the cheese on top has melted and the bottom of the tortilla starts to turn brown. Finally, remove it from the pan and cut it into wedges. I didn't really think of having anything with it, but typical Mexican sides such as sour cream, guacamole, and salsa would have been perfect.

D

Modern Life

With LIZ COLVIN

The news that Hollywood couples are having themed weddings has shown that dressing up for fun is definitely back – and nobody is more pleased than me.

I'm such a big fan of costume parties. Since I grew up in a drab, suburban neighborhood, I always jumped at the chance to wear outrageous clothing and "become" somebody else. A costume party is simply a chance to revisit and recapture that childlike sense of fun that we often lose as adults.

If you're thinking about throwing one, my advice to you – someone who has hosted dozens – is not to be too specific. If you want a big attendance, it's important to give a loose theme: a recent decade, a historical era, or a region of the world. People are most likely to put an effort into their costumes if you give them the freedom to be creative. And remember, not everyone likes dressing up, so don't insist everybody goes all out!

Also think about how you're going to complement the costumes. Music, drinks, and decorations that suit your theme will all make the occasion more memorable.
